General Certificate of Secondary Education
Syllabus

OCR is a unitary examining body, established by the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate and the RSA Examinations Board in January 1998. OCR provides a full range of GCSE, A level, GNVQ, Key Skills and other qualifications for schools and colleges in the United Kingdom, including those previously provided by MEG and OCEAC.

GENERAL INFORMATION

AVAILABILITY

This syllabus will be examined by OCR in the Summer of the year(s) shown on the cover.

Details of the provision of Autumn examinations are given in the GCSE Syllabus Synopses booklet.

EXCLUSIONS

In any one examination series, candidates entering for this syllabus may not in addition enter for any other OCR GCSE examination with the same certification title.

Details of any other exclusions are given in the syllabus.

ENTRIES

All candidates, including private candidates, must be entered by a Centre registered with OCR.

All candidates must meet the full requirements of this syllabus and must therefore have any coursework/assessed practical work authenticated and assessed by an approved Centre.

RESULTS

Results will be reported on the 8-point scale of grades A*, A, B, C, D, E, F and G.

SPELLING, PUNCTUATION AND GRAMMAR

The assessment of spelling, punctuation and grammar is a requirement of most syllabuses. Where components are affected, details are given in an appendix to the syllabus.

COURSEWORK ASSESSMENT

Where the syllabus includes assessment of coursework, in accordance with the GCSE & A/AS Code of Practice, teachers are required to show how the marks have been awarded in relation to the marking criteria defined in the syllabus.

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

Other publications such as past papers and mark schemes can be purchased from OCR. A copy of the publications order form is available on request.

This syllabus has been designed to meet the requirements of the Northern Ireland GCSE Regulations and criteria for English. It also meets the requirements of the Northern Ireland programme of study for English at Key Stage 4. In developing schemes of work for this syllabus, teachers are encouraged to address the statutory objectives of the educational (cross-curricular) themes.

ENGLISH (1500) SYLLABUS SUMMARY

RECOGNISING ACHIEVEMENT

This syllabus meets the Key Stage 4 requirements of the National Curriculum for English. It has been designed to offer all candidates an equal opportunity to demonstrate attainment in speaking and listening, reading and writing, using a variety of assessment techniques. There are no set books for OCR's English syllabus, although its links with the English Literature course enable Centres to plan a unified course, and coursework may be common to both syllabuses.

Question Paper Requirements

Papers 1 and 3 (Non-fiction and Media Texts): Section A requires candidates to attempt two tasks based on reading. Section B requires candidates to attempt one writing task from the two set. Pre-released material will encourage candidates to consider the topic of the paper in advance.

Papers 2 and 4 (Literary Texts): Section A requires candidates to attempt one task based on reading. Section B requires candidates to attempt two writing tasks. Task 1 will be set on a pre-released prose passage which may be taken from a short story or a chapter from a book.

Coursework Requirements

Component 5 Reading and Writing has three units:

Unit 1	non-fiction writing to inform, explain and describe
Unit 2	imaginative and creative writing to explore, imagine and entertain
Unit 3	reading in the English literary heritage; writing to analyse, review and comment.

Unit 3 may also contribute to the assessment of English Literature.

Component 6 Speaking and Listening - should be assessed throughout the course. Three assessments for each candidate must be made.

Candidates should use talk to:

- explain, describe, narrate;
- explore, analyse, imagine;
- discuss, argue, persuade.

Candidates should listen in order to:

- assimilate information;
- make judgements;
- report back to others;
- guide the course of a discussion.

English 3 OCR GCSE

ENGLISH SYLLABUS CODE 1500

1 INTRODUCTION

This syllabus has been devised in accordance with the requirements of the National Curriculum Orders for Key Stage 4 (KS4) English and the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) Regulations for GCSE syllabuses and Subject Criteria for English.

This subject will be shown on the GCSE certificate as ENGLISH.

In any one examination series, candidates entering for this syllabus may not in addition enter for any other OCR examination with the same certification title.

2 SYLLABUS AIMS

In reading, to develop candidates' ability to:

- read accurately, fluently and with understanding;
- understand and respond to the texts they read;
- read, analyse and evaluate a wide range of texts, including literature from the English literary heritage and from other cultures and traditions.

In writing, to develop candidates' effective use of:

- compositional skills developing ideas and communicating meaning to a reader, using a wide-ranging vocabulary and an effective style, organising and structuring sentences grammatically and whole texts coherently;
- a widening variety of forms for different purposes.

In speaking and listening, to develop candidates' ability to:

- use the vocabulary and grammar of standard English;
- formulate, clarify and express ideas;
- adapt speech to a widening range of circumstances and demands;
- listen, understand and respond appropriately to others.

3 ASSESSMENT OBJECTIVES

3.1 Reading

Candidates must demonstrate their ability to:

- (i) read with insight and engagement, making appropriate references to texts and developing and sustaining interpretations of them;
- (ii) distinguish between fact and opinion and evaluate how information is presented;
- (iii) follow an argument, identifying implications and recognising inconsistencies:
- (iv) select material appropriate to their purpose, collate material from different sources, and make cross references;
- (v) understand and evaluate how writers use linguistic, structural and presentational devices to achieve their effects and comment on ways language varies and changes.

3.2 Writing

Candidates must demonstrate their ability to:

- (i) communicate clearly, adapting their writing for a wide range of purposes and audiences;
- (ii) use and adapt forms and genres for specific purposes and effects;
- (iii) organise ideas into sentences, paragraphs and whole texts;
- (iv) use accurate spelling and punctuation, and present work neatly and clearly;
- use the grammatical structures of standard English and a wide vocabulary to express meanings with clarity and precision.

3.3 Speaking and Listening

Candidates must demonstrate their ability to:

- (i) communicate clearly, structuring and organising their talk and adapting it to different situations;
- (ii) use standard English;
- (iii) listen to and understand varied speech;
- (iv) participate in discussion, judging the nature and purposes of contributions and the roles of participants.

3.5 Differentiation between Tiers

Questions set in the examination will target all the appropriate assessment objectives, which apply to both the Higher and Foundation Tiers.

Differentiation is achieved through the challenges set by the reading passages and the tasks, and by the expected outcomes.

Reading

Candidates taking Higher Tier examination papers are required to interpret and evaluate texts which are complex both in content and in style, for example in their levels of implied meaning or of figurative language.

Candidates taking Foundation Tier examination papers are required to understand and comment on texts which make some demands on the reader, for example of vocabulary, but which are written at a lower level of complexity.

Writing

In response to writing tasks, candidates taking Higher Tier are required to write complex arguments, well developed personal opinion, and narratives that sustain the reader's interest. They should be able to invent, plan and structure their own subject matter and to write accurately with an increasing sense of style.

Candidates taking Foundation Tier should be able to provide arguments in support of a case, express points of view and write orderly narratives.

English 8 OCR GCSE

They should be able to respond to prompts that suggest or prescribe the content of their writing, to write clear, plain prose and to express ideas in an orderly fashion.

4 SCHEME OF ASSESSMENT

4.1 Tiering

The Scheme of Assessment consists of two tiers: Foundation Tier and Higher Tier. Foundation Tier assesses Grades G to C and Higher Tier assesses Grades D to A*.

Each tier consists of two papers and coursework. Foundation Tier comprises Paper 1 and Paper 2 plus coursework. Higher Tier comprises paper 3 and Paper 4 plus coursework.

Candidates will be entered for either the Foundation Tier or the Higher Tier.

Candidates achieving less than the minimum mark for Grade D on the Higher Tier or Grade G on the Foundation Tier will be recorded as ungraded ('U').

4.2 Question Papers

4.2.1 Paper 1, Foundation Tier and Paper 3, Higher Tier: Non-fiction and Media Texts 30% 2 hours plus 10 minutes reading time

Short items of material will be pre-released to give the opportunity for candidates to consider the topic of the paper in advance and to help them in the Section B writing task. The pre-released material will be despatched to centres in mid-February of the year of the examination.

In the examination, ten minutes' reading time will be allowed for candidates to read the set passages and to study the tasks. During this time no writing will be permitted.

Section A

Two tasks will be set. Candidates must respond to both.

Tasks 1 and 2 will be set on passages that cover the following reading requirements as stated in the Subject Criteria for English:

- non-fiction texts.
- media texts.

The texts will be chosen from a range including newspapers and magazines, advertising material, leaflets and handouts, letters, journals, biographies and travel literature.

The tasks may include (appropriate to tier):

- selecting, summarising and collating information and argument;
- · detecting fact, opinion and bias, and evaluating the use of information and argument;
- commenting on methods used by writers to influence and persuade.

Where layout, graphics and photographs are an intrinsic part of the text, candidates will be expected to comment on them and their relationship to the written content.

Section A assesses understanding of and response to reading. The marks are worth 20% of the marks for the whole examination.

Section B

Two tasks will be set giving candidates opportunities to respond to the issues presented in the passages. Candidates will choose one task.

The tasks may involve candidates in explaining a personal viewpoint, giving information, arguing cases, or discussing opposing stances. They may be in forms such as letters, formal reports, newspaper reports, articles, interviews and editorials, and 'transcripts' of talks and radio and television discussions and chat shows.

Section B assesses writing. The marks are worth 10% of the marks for the whole examination.

4.2.2 Paper 2, Foundation Tier and Paper 4, Higher Tier: Literary Texts 30% 2 hours plus 10 minutes reading time

Ten minutes' reading time will be allowed for candidates to read the set passages and to study the tasks. During this time no writing will be permitted.

Section A

One task will be set on a pre-released prose passage which may be taken from a short story or a chapter from a book. The pre-released passage will be despatched to centres in mid-February of the year of the examination.

The passage set will be selected from reading from other cultures and traditions as required in the Subject Criteria for English.

The passage will be in prose.

The task may include:

- responses to character, plot and setting;
- responses to the ways in which themes are developed and to an author's or narrator's attitude;
- responses to language and style;
- personal responses to texts or specific aspects of texts;
- responses to the distinctive qualities of texts from other cultures and traditions.

Section A assesses understanding of and response to reading. The marks are worth 10% of the marks for the whole examination.

Section B

Two writing tasks linked to the passage used in Section A will be set.

One task will assess aspects of writing to inform, explain and describe, and to argue, persuade and instruct. The other will assess writing to explore, imagine and entertain.

Section B assesses writing. The marks are worth 20% of the marks for the whole examination.

4.3 Coursework Reading and Writing 20%; Speaking and Listening 20%

This section should be read in conjunction with the assessment objectives which are listed in Section 3.

Further notes on the content and marking of coursework will be found in Appendices A and B. Extended advice on planning, task setting, and assessment procedures will be found in OCR's English and English Literature Handbook for Teachers.

Reading and Writing

Three units of coursework are required for the assessment of English reading and writing.

Unit 1: non-fiction writing to inform, explain and describe.

Unit 2: writing to explore, imagine and entertain.

Unit 3: writing to analyse, review and comment is part of Unit 3. Centres must indicate on the candidate's Coursework Assessment Form which task in Unit 3 they have used for this assessment.

Unit 3 also includes reading in the English literary heritage. This unit must include:

- drama, prose and poetry from the English literary heritage
- a play by Shakespeare
- work published before 1900 by a writer specified in the Order
- work by a major writer whose work was published after 1900

It is likely that these requirements will be covered in three responses of writing, but Centres may link the requirements in fewer responses as they wish.

Any response submitted as part of English coursework, Unit 3 may also be submitted for assessment in English Literature provided that it meets the appropriate assessment objectives and content requirements for English Literature.

At least one response must be in the candidate's own handwriting.

Speaking and Listening

The major purposes of speaking and listening are to:

- explain, describe, narrate,
- explore, analyse, imagine,
- discuss, argue, persuade.

Throughout the course, the candidate should participate in a range of activities that fit these purposes and meet the assessment objectives.

At the end of the course the teacher must for each candidate:

- select three activities that demonstrate coverage of the content and the assessment objectives;
- (ii) give a mark that represents the overall standard attained.

4.3.1 Moderation

All coursework is marked by the teacher and internally standardised by the Centre. Marks are then submitted to OCR by a specified date, after which external moderation takes place in accordance with OCR procedures (see Appendix C). The purpose of moderation is to ensure that the standard for the award of marks in coursework is the same for each Centre, and that each teacher has applied the standards appropriately across the range of candidates within the Centre.

The sample of work which is submitted to the Moderator for moderation must show clearly how the marks have been awarded in relation to the marking criteria.

If they wish, Centres may operate in consortia (see Appendix C).

4.3.2 Minimum Coursework Requirements

At least one written and one speaking and listening response must be submitted by the candidate. If a candidate submits no written coursework or fails to participate in any speaking or listening activity, then the candidate should be indicated as being absent from that component on the coursework mark sheets submitted to OCR.

4.3.3 Incomplete Coursework

Candidates must include the following:

- non-fiction writing to inform, explain and describe;
- imaginative writing to explore, imagine and entertain;
- writing to analyse, review and comment;
- study of a play by Shakespeare;
- study of prose and of poetry from the English literary heritage;
- study of work published before 1900 by a writer specified in the Order; and study of work by a major writer whose work was published after 1900.

If these requirements are not met, the teacher must:

- mark the folder for overall quality, disregarding any requirement that is not met.
- then reduce the mark awarded by 15% for each requirement that is not met.

If a candidate completes any work at all for the coursework component then the work should be assessed according to the above criteria and marking instructions and the appropriate mark awarded, which may be 0 (zero).

4.3.4 Authentication

Teachers must supervise the work of each candidate to ensure its originality and that the candidate has not been given unfair help.

- All candidates should do some of their early drafting in the classroom.
- No candidate may copy out a draft that has been corrected in detail or for accuracy by the teacher.

4.4 Spelling, Punctuation and Grammar

No separate assessment is required since these are included in the assessment objectives for writing.

English 13 OCR GCSE

4.5 Differentiation

In the terminal examination and coursework, differentiation will be achieved by task and by outcome.

4.6 Awarding of Grades

The question papers will have a total weighting of 60% and the coursework a weighting of 40%.

A candidate's mark for each of the two papers taken will be combined with the coursework mark in the appropriate weighting to give the candidate's total mark for the syllabus. The candidate's grade will be determined by this total mark. Candidates failing to achieve the minimum mark for a Grade G in the Foundation Tier or for a Grade D in the Higher Tier will be ungraded.

SYLLABUS CONTENT 5

The syllabus content accords with the range of requirements specified in the National Curriculum Programmes of Study for reading and writing and speaking and listening.

The requirements for reading will be tested in the following components.

Papers 1 and 3 will test reading of:

- non-fiction texts.
- media texts.

Papers 2 and 4 will test reading of:

prose from other cultures and traditions.

Written coursework will test:

reading in the English literary heritage (see page 12 for details).

Candidates must be assessed on their use of writing to:

- explore, imagine, entertain, (Unit 2, coursework; Papers 2 and 4),
- inform, explain and describe, (Unit 1, coursework; Papers 2 and 4),
- argue, persuade and instruct, (Papers 1, 2, 3 and 4),
- analyse, review and comment, (Unit 3, coursework)

in a variety of forms and genres.

Candidates must be assessed on their use of talk to:

- explain, describe, narrate,
- explore, analyse, imagine,
- discuss, arque, persuade.

They should speak to a variety of audiences and in different situations (for example, pair work, small group work, to the class or to a formal audience, to peers and to adults).

OCR GCSE 14 English

Candidates should be assessed on the effectiveness of their listening (for example to:

- assimilate information,
- make judgements,
- report back to others,
- guide the course of a discussion).

Records must be kept of the activities of each candidate.

The content of the question papers and the coursework is summarised in the following plan:

PAPERS 1 AND 3 NON-FICTION AND MEDIA TEXTS (30%)

Texts:

6 GRADE DESCRIPTIONS

The following grade descriptions give a general indication of the standards of achievement likely to have been shown by candidates awarded grades F, C and A. The grade awarded will depend in practice upon the extent to which the candidate has met the assessment objectives overall. Shortcomings in some aspects of the examination may be balanced by better performances in others.

Grade F

Candidates talk and listen in a range of contexts. Their talk is adapted to the purpose, developing ideas, describing events and conveying their opinions clearly. In discussion, they listen with concentration and make contributions which are responsive to others' ideas and views. They use some of the core features of standard English vocabulary and grammar appropriately.

In responding to their reading of a range of texts, candidates show understanding of key ideas, themes, events and characters, using inference and deduction. They refer to aspects of texts when explaining their views. They locate and retrieve ideas and information effectively.

Candidates' writing communicates clearly, shows liveliness and is organised. The main features of different forms are used appropriately, beginning to be adapted to different readers. Sequences of sentences extend ideas logically and words are chosen for variety and interest. The grammatical structure of simple and complex sentences is usually correct. Spelling is usually accurate. Full stops, capital letters and question marks are used correctly and other punctuation is also used, mostly accurately. Handwriting is legible.

Grade C

Candidates match their talk to the demands of different contexts. They use varied vocabulary and organise their talk to communicate clearly, engaging the interest of the listener. In discussion, candidates make significant contributions, varying how and when they participate. They show confident use of standard English in situations which require it.

Candidates show understanding of the ways in which meaning and information are conveyed in a range of literary and non-literary texts. They give personal responses to literary texts, referring to aspects of language, structure and themes in justifying their views. They select and summarise a range of information from different sources.

Candidates' writing engages and sustains the reader's interest. It shows adaptation of style and register to different forms, including using an impersonal style where appropriate. Candidates use a range of sentence structures and varied vocabulary to create effects. Paragraphing and correct punctuation are used to make the sequence of events or ideas coherent and clear to the reader. Spelling is generally accurate and handwriting is neat and legible.

English 16 OCR GCSE

Grade A

In a range of contexts, candidates select and use appropriate styles and registers. They vary their sentence structure, vocabulary and expression confidently for a range of purposes. They sustain discussion through the use of a variety of contributions, listening with sensitivity. They show assured use of standard English in a range of situations and for a variety of purposes.

Candidates articulate and sustain their response to texts, developing their ideas and referring in detail to aspects of language, structure and presentation. They identify and analyse argument, and opinion and alternative interpretations, making cross references where appropriate. They make apt and careful comparison within and between texts.

Candidates' writing has shape and assured control of a range of styles. Narratives use structure as well as vocabulary for a range of effects, and non-fiction is coherent, logical and persuasive. A wide range of grammatical construction is used accurately. Punctuation and spelling are correct; paragraphs are well constructed and linked to clarify the organisation of the writing as a whole.

7 FURTHER INFORMATION AND TRAINING FOR TEACHERS

In support of this syllabus, OCR will make the following materials and services available to teachers:

- a full programme of In-Service Training (INSET) meetings;
- specimen question papers and marking guidelines;
- coursework guidance materials;
- a dedicated subject-specific telephone number;
- written advice on coursework proposals from regional Coursework Consultants;
- past question papers and mark schemes after each examination session;
- a Report on the Examination after each Summer examination session;
- individual feedback to each Centre on the moderation of coursework.

If you would like further information about this syllabus, please contact OCR. The address is given on the back cover of this syllabus booklet.

NOTES OF GUIDANCE ON COURSEWORK

NATURE AND SETTING OF COURSEWORK 1

1.1 Coursework should provide candidates with opportunities to address most of the assessment objectives for reading, all of those for writing, and all of those for speaking and listening as set out on pages 5 and 6 and in the grid on pages 7–8.

Teachers, knowing their candidates, should set tasks and material for study which offer appropriate challenges to their ability and which enable a suitable range of grades to be awarded. For example, a short story that is simple narrative and makes few challenges through its language, characterisation or theme will normally be unsuitable for candidates working above Grade E.

Candidates working at high levels must study literary texts which allow them to focus their study in depth, for example to sustain interpretations, to evaluate ways in which the texts are written and to demonstrate the various effects of language use.

1.2 Pre-moderation Monitoring of Coursework

OCR will provide exemplification to guide teachers in setting tasks. Centres should note that OCR may request samples of the tasks planned or used by the Centres at any stage during the course. Teachers may seek further guidance on task setting from the Coursework Consultant allocated to the Centre.

2 READING AND WRITING COURSEWORK

2.1 Coursework Units

It is convenient to arrange work in units because coursework for English reflects the varied reading requirements in the National Curriculum Revised English Order and the GCSE Subject Criteria for English, and because comparison is a key feature of coursework for English Literature.

A unit of coursework may be:

 a continuous response, for example a story about a fantastic experience told in flashback (Unit 2);

- subdivided into sections, for example two separate but linked responses, one describing the first day at a work experience placement and the other an explanation of the company's health and safety arrangements (Unit 1);
- based on more than one text, for example poems by Tennyson and 'The Woman in Black' by Susan Hill with settings as a starting point (Unit 3).
- completely separate responses designed to cover all the prescribed reading.

2.2 Covering the Assessment Objectives

Reading: assessment objectives (i), (v) and relevant aspects of (iv) must be assessed in Unit 3, reading in the English literary heritage.

Writing: the content of the folder should be such as to allow the assessment of all the writing objectives.

In considering the range Centres should bear in mind the different purposes of writing to:

- inform, explain, describe;
- explore, imagine, entertain;
- analyse, review, comment.

The range of writing purposes and forms set by Centres for coursework will be complemented by the writing tasks set in the question papers.

2.3 Knowledge about Language

Centres are reminded that this is no longer part of the content of coursework but must be addressed through reading objective (v), 'understand and evaluate how writers use linguistic, structural and presentational devices in order to achieve their effects, and comment on ways language varies and changes'.

Section 3 of the Revised Order for English in the National Curriculum (1995) gives the detail of what must be taught.

2.4 Reading and Writing Units

There are three units of coursework for the assessment of reading and writing.

English 19 OCR GCSE 2000

2.4.1 Unit 1: Non-fiction writing to inform, explain and describe

Candidates should use any appropriate form such as a letter, a newspaper report or article, or the words of an information sheet. The writing may be autobiographical and may include accounts of interests, achievements and work experience. The use of language and the choice of style should be appropriate to the assessment of writing to inform, explain and describe.

2.4.2 Unit 2: Imaginative and creative writing to explore, imagine and entertain

Candidates should write in any appropriate style, for example narrative, poetry or drama script. The content and the style of the writing should be different from that of Unit 1. The use of language and the choice of style should be appropriate to the assessment of writing to explore, imagine and entertain.

2.4.3 Unit 3: Reading in the English literary heritage

Candidates must respond to the range of reading specified in the revised National Curriculum Order for KS3 and KS4 English.

The depth and detail of the study of reading is indicated by the marking criteria for English, reading in the English literary heritage, to be found in sections 5, 6 and 7 of Appendix B in this syllabus. Centres must ensure that the texts and the tasks set are of sufficient length and quality to provide candidates with the opportunity to meet the descriptions given for reading at the various grade-related marking bands.

Candidates may comment in their writing on taped and live performances provided that their comments are linked to the study of the written text.

2.4.4 Length of Units

Candidates should avoid unnecessary length. Very bulky folders are strongly discouraged. Candidates must not misinterpret the function of a unit, which is to give coherence to the requirements of the examination.

2.5 The Relationship of Speaking and Listening to the Assessment of Reading

The assessment of reading must be made from written work. Speaking and listening assignments may only be used instead of written units where the written unit contains a transcript or an evaluation of a taperecorded speaking and listening activity.

Centres may modify their assessment of reading in the light of speaking and listening assignments provided that the candidate or the teacher includes notes that explain the content and the quality of the work. Such modifications would normally be very slight.

2.6 Presentation of the Reading and Writing Folder

The candidate's work must be placed with the Coursework Assessment Forms (see Appendix E) or in a flat A4 folder.

Each piece of written evidence must:

- be clearly headed with the date of writing and the candidate's name;
- include a title and description of the nature of the task and, where relevant, the source or text upon which the work is based;
- show evidence of having been marked by the teacher.

Work must not be altered or re-copied after it has been marked.

OCR will provide a Coursework Assessment Form (see Appendix E) for each candidate. The form must be completed by the teacher and the candidate and securely attached to the work. This will then be the complete record of the coursework submitted by the candidate and of the marks awarded by the Centre.

SPEAKING AND LISTENING COURSEWORK

3.1 Setting tasks

Candidates are required to use talk to:

- explain, describe, narrate,
- explore, analyse, imagine,
- discuss, argue, persuade.

Centres should cover these uses of talk by their choice of assignment. Within any one assignment a number of different purposes for talk may take place.

Example 1: candidates discussing a painting explore, analyse and imagine.

Example 2: candidates formulating an advertising campaign discuss, arque and persuade.

Example 3: candidates taking part in a role play explain, describe and narrate.

OCR GCSE 21 English 2000

3.2 Making assessments and keeping records

3.2.1 Each candidate must be assessed on a sufficient number of occasions to represent the range of speaking and listening activities indicated in section 3.1 above.

Internal records must be kept of candidates' achievements in speaking and listening. These records must reflect all of the assessment objectives.

Internal records of speaking and listening achievements should include:

- the date of the activity;
- brief details of what the candidate had to do:
- brief details of the quality of the candidate's performance;
- the mark awarded.
- 3.2.2 At the end of the course, Centres must record descriptions of three activities for each candidate on the Speaking and Listening Coursework Assessment Form (see Appendix E). They must also give a summative comment that relates the candidate's overall achievement to the assessment objectives and the grade descriptions.

The final mark will be based on the candidate's achievement as a whole and will not be the result of an arithmetical calculation.

MARKING AND STANDARDISATION OF COURSE WORK

DIFFERENTIATION AND MARKING OF COURSEWORK

Marking should be positive, rewarding achievement rather than penalising failure. It is the quality of the candidate's work and not its quantity which is assessed.

The assessment objectives which indicate in general terms what candidates should achieve are common to all. Differentiation in coursework is by task and by outcome, with teachers helping candidates to select tasks which provide opportunities to show what they know, understand and can do, so that they score appropriately when the marking criteria are applied.

The award of marks must be directly related to the marking criteria set out in Section 5, 6 and 7 below. The relationship of the Centre's marking to the marking criteria must be made clear:

- each unit of written work must bear evidence of the teacher's marking. The evidence may consist of comments at the end or in the margin. At least some of the errors made should be indicated, and comments should indicate which of the marking criteria are most evident;
- the descriptions of three activities on the candidate's Speaking and Listening Coursework Assessment Form must relate the candidate's achievements to the assessment objectives and the grade descriptions.

The candidate's overall strengths and weaknesses may be summarised on the Coursework Assessment Forms.

23 OCR GCSE English

2 MARKING COURSEWORK

The written work in each folder must be marked as a whole according to the mark band descriptions set out below. A separate mark, also out of 100, is required for speaking and listening. These mark bands are approximately equivalent to the grades indicated by the letters.

0 - 20	below mark band G
21 - 30	mark band G
31 - 40	mark band F
41 - 50	mark band E
51 - 60	mark band D
61 - 70	mark band C
71 - 80	mark band B
81 - 90	mark band A
91 - 100	mark band A*

HOW TO APPLY THE MARKING CRITERIA

Teachers must give two coursework marks for each candidate. The first mark is for the candidate's overall achievements in Speaking and Listening and is out of 100. The second mark is also out of 100 and is the aggregate of marks out of 50 for reading and 50 for writing.

Separate criteria for Speaking and Listening, Reading and Writing are printed in Sections 5, 6 and 7 of this Appendix.

For each, the first column describes general qualities related to grades. This is followed by criteria specific to the syllabus content.

Teachers should use their professional judgement to select and apply the criteria appropriately and fairly to the work of candidates. Each successive mark range assumes the continued demonstration of the qualities described in the lower ranges.

Candidates should be awarded the appropriate mark within any range on a 'best fit' basis. Compensation between higher achievement in one aspect of a unit of work and lower achievement in another is permissible and encouraged.

Teachers should make a broad judgement using the criteria describing general qualities. Then the judgement should be refined using the specific criteria.

The specific criteria should be used for guidance in assessing individual units or responses within a unit.

The GCSE grade equivalents are given for guidance only.

The final mark of any candidate whose coursework is incomplete must be reduced in accordance with the instructions given on page 13 of this syllabus.

4 INTERNAL STANDARDISATION

Centres are required to nominate an internal moderator for each coursework component (Reading and Writing and Speaking and Listening). The same person may be the internal moderator for both components, if necessary. For the relevant coursework component(s), the internal moderator must:

- supervise all procedures concerned with the administration, marking and standardisation of coursework within the Centre;
- train and assist other colleagues involved in the implementation of these procedures;
- attend meetings of a consortium if the Centre is a member (see Appendix C).
- ensure that OCR standards are applied to the Centre's marking for moderation purposes.

Centres are required to ensure that internal standardisation is undertaken and that the internal moderator is enabled to fulfil the above role.

The purpose of internal standardisation is to ensure that the content of the coursework meets the stated requirements and that the marks awarded reflect the relative attainment of all the Centre's candidates in the subject.

The internal moderator must therefore:

- ensure that the tasks cover the required syllabus content and meet the assessment objectives;
- ensure that the tasks offer sufficient challenge and depth of study for higher grades to be awarded;
- ensure that all staff preparing coursework meet to discuss and agree the marking of specimens of work and that their marking is to a common standard:

 internally moderate the folders of each teaching set. This must be done by sampling at the lower borderline of Grades F, C and A;

and/or internally moderate the speaking and listening of each teaching set.

 This should be done by sampling the marking of classroom activities either by visit or on tape.

The marking of any teacher found to be lenient or severe should be adjusted to bring it into line with the rest of the Centre's marking. If the internal moderator cannot agree the rank order of the candidates in any teaching set, the work must be re-marked. At the end of this process all the Centre's marks for each coursework component will have been placed in a single rank order.

The candidates' folders must be marked, internally standardised and available for external moderation by a date in May to be specified by OCR.

The candidates' speaking and listening work must be marked, internally standardised, and summarised on coursework assessment sheets which must be available for external moderation by the date to be specified by OCR, which will normally be 31 March in the year of the examination.

PROCEDURES FOR THE MODERATION OF COURSEWORK IN ENGLISH AND ENGLISH LITERATURE

ENGLISH, READING AND WRITING, AND ENGLISH LITERATURE

- The moderation of English coursework, reading and writing, and of English Literature coursework will be by post.
- 1.2 OCR will provide marked samples of candidates' work for the purpose of internal standardisation. These samples must be used as reference when Centres standardise their work.
- 1.3 In May of the year of the examination, the Centre will submit marks to the OCR Moderator who will request a sample of the Centre's marked written coursework.

ENGLISH, SPEAKING AND LISTENING

- The Moderation of English coursework, speaking and listening, will follow a procedure common to all the Examining Groups.
- 2.2 This procedure will be as follows:
 - a co-ordination meeting for teachers will be held during the Autumn term of the year of the examination;
 - OCR will send to each Centre a video tape of examples of speaking and listening activities. The tape will be common to all the Examining Groups. The Centre will assess the candidates on the tape and will submit marks to OCR by 28 February in the year of the examination;
 - OCR will compare the marks awarded by the Centre with the agreed marks:
 - where the Centre's marking of the video tape does not meet the agreed standards, the OCR Moderator will visit the Centre to sample the assessment of the work of candidates;

- after the visit, the Moderator will compare his/her marks with those awarded by the Centre. As a result of this moderation, the final marks awarded by the Centre to all its candidates will be subject to adjustment as necessary;
- in addition to the arrangements given above, all OCR Centres will receive a visit from the Moderator within a given period to time.

3 CONSORTIUM PROCEDURES FOR THE MODERATION OF ENGLISH AND ENGLISH LITERATURE

Centres wishing to form consortia for the purpose of moderation may adopt consortium procedures as an alternative to those outlined in Section 1 above.

3.1 RATIONALE

Moderation by consortium has considerable advantages for Centres, for OCR and for the examination and its assessment. It:

- brings Centres together for discussion and support;
- establishes a working relationship between OCR and its Centres;
- builds up expertise in the application of standards;
- formalises the standardisation of marking prior to moderation.

3.2 SETTING UP A CONSORTIUM

A consortium may consist of three or more Centres. It should not consist of more than twelve Centres.

Centres must confirm their membership before the end of the Autumn term of the first year of the course. In doing so they agree to act collectively in establishing a single rank order of their candidates. They must also agree to attend two meetings during the examination year. The consortium correspondent must inform OCR of the Centres in the consortium.

Centres wishing to form a consortium should apply to OCR for details of the procedures to be followed.

CANDIDATES ENTERING FOR BOTH ENGLISH AND ENGLISH LITERATURE

The same coursework may be submitted for assessment for both English and English Literature.

Set books for the English Literature terminal examination may also be used as a basis for coursework in English.

The following plan shows the relationship between the syllabuses for English and for English Literature.
