General Certificate of Secondary Education
Syllabus

OCR is a unitary examining body, established by the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate and the RSA Examinations Board in January 1998. OCR provides a full range of GCSE, A level, GNVQ, Key Skills and other qualifications for schools and colleges in the United Kingdom, including those previously provided by MEG and OCEAC.

GENERAL INFORMATION

AVAILABILITY

This syllabus will be examined by OCR in the Summer of the year(s) shown on the cover.

Details of the provision of Autumn examinations are given in the GCSE Syllabus Synopses booklet.

EXCLUSIONS

In any one examination series, candidates entering for this syllabus may not in addition enter for any other OCR GCSE examination with the same certification title.

Details of any other exclusions are given in the syllabus.

ENTRIES

All candidates, including private candidates, must be entered by a Centre registered with OCR.

All candidates must meet the full requirements of this syllabus and must therefore have any coursework/assessed practical work authenticated and assessed by an approved Centre.

RESULTS

Results will be reported on the 8-point scale of grades A*, A, B, C, D, E, F and G.

SPELLING, PUNCTUATION AND GRAMMAR

The assessment of spelling, punctuation and grammar is a requirement of most syllabuses. Where components are affected, details are given in an appendix to the syllabus.

COURSEWORK ASSESSMENT

Where the syllabus includes assessment of coursework, in accordance with the GCSE & A/AS Code of Practice, teachers are required to show how the marks have been awarded in relation to the marking criteria defined in the syllabus.

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

Other publications such as past papers and mark schemes can be purchased from OCR. A copy of the publications order form is available on request.

Appendix C:	How the Syllabus meets the Content Requirements of the Subject Criteria	Page 33

This syllabus has been devised in accordance with Qualifications and Curriculum Authority Regulations for GCSE syllabuses and the Subject Criteria for History.

The syllabus is designed to allow candidates to gain, through a study of the main developments in international relations since 1919, an historical perspective on some of the main issues facing the contemporary world. As a contrast, by requiring the study in greater depth of the history of the individual countries 'in the round' over a shorter period of time, the syllabus also enhances students' understanding of societies different in time and place from our own.

Scheme of Assessment

Component	Name	Duration	Weighting
11–14	Paper 1	2 hours	45%
2	Paper 2	1 hour 30 mins	30%
3	Coursework	–	25%

All candidates take the same components: Paper 1 (i.e. any one of Components 11–14), Paper 2 and Coursework. All grades (G – A*) are available.

Syllabus Content

The syllabus content consists of a compulsory Core and a range of optional Depth Studies from which three (one for Paper 1 and two for coursework) must be studied.

For centres in Northern Ireland, the requirements of the Northern Ireland programme of study can be met by a course consisting of the core, and three Depth Studies, one of which must be Britain and the First World War, 1914–18, on which coursework set in a Northern Ireland context must be produced. In developing schemes of work for, and in the delivery of a course based on this syllabus, teaching must fulfil the statutory requirements to promote, through the teaching of contributory subjects, the objectives of the educational (cross-curricular) themes.

The Core:

International relations, 1919–c.1989

Depth Studies:

- A. Germany, 1918–1945
- B. Russia, 1905–1941
- C. The USA, 1919–1941
- D. China, 1945–c.1990
- E. Britain and the First World War, 1914–18
- F. South Africa, 1945–1994
- G. Israel and the Arab-Israeli Conflict, 1945–c.1994

[Topics A, B, C and D only will be tested on Paper 1.]

Question Paper Requirements

Paper 1 is divided into three sections. Sections A and B test the Core Content. Section A has two source-based questions; candidates must answer one of these. Section B has four structured questions; candidates must answer one question. Section C tests the chosen Depth Study. Three structured questions will be set, of which candidates must answer two. Paper 2 consists of a source-based investigation of an historical issue taken from the Core Content. The syllabus for each year will specify the broad area from which the specific topic for the paper will be drawn.

Coursework Requirements

Coursework must be produced on two of the Depth Studies. These must be different Depth Studies from that studied for Paper 1. Candidates must complete two coursework assignments, one on each of the two chosen Depth Studies. It should be possible for candidates to satisfy the coursework requirements by writing no more than 2000 words.

HISTORY SYLLABUS B

(THE MODERN WORLD, 1914 – THE PRESENT DAY)

SYLLABUS CODE 1607

1 INTRODUCTION

This syllabus has been devised in accordance with the QCA Regulations for GCSE syllabuses and Subject Criteria for History.

It meets the requirements of the Northern Ireland GCSE Regulations and criteria for History, and of the programme of study for History at Key Stage 4.

This subject will be shown on the GCSE certificate as HISTORY.

In any one examination series, candidates entered for this subject may not, in addition, enter for any other OCR Full or Short Course examination with the same certification title.

2 SYLLABUS AIMS

This course gives candidates the opportunity to:

- acquire knowledge and understanding of the human past;
- investigate historical events, changes, people and issues;
- develop understanding of how the past has been represented and interpreted;
- use historical sources critically in their historical context;
- draw conclusions and appreciate that these and other historical conclusions are liable to reassessment in the light of new or reinterpreted evidence.

It should be noted that not all of these aims can be translated readily into assessment objectives.

3 ASSESSMENT OBJECTIVES

Candidates must demonstrate the ability to:

Objective 1

recall, select, organise and deploy knowledge of the syllabus content.

Objective 2

describe, analyse and explain:

- the events, changes and issues studied;

- the key features and characteristics of the periods, people, societies or situations studied.

Objective 3

in relation to the historical context:

- comprehend, analyse and evaluate representations and interpretations of the events, people and issues studied;
- comprehend, interpret, evaluate and use a range of sources of information of different types.

4 SCHEME OF ASSESSMENT

- 4.1 All candidates take the same components: Paper 1, Paper 2 and Coursework. All grades (G to A*) are available.

The relationship between the assessment objectives and the components of the scheme of assessment is shown in the following grid.

	Paper 1	Paper 2	Coursework	Total
Objectives 1 and 2	42.5%	7.5%	12.5%	62.5%
Objective 3	2.5%	22.5%	12.5%	37.5%
Total	45%	30%	25%	100%

4.2 Question Papers

Paper 1 (2 hours)

Candidates must be entered for one of the following Paper 1 components. All four components include questions on the Core content and one Depth Study.

Component	Depth Study
1607/11	Paper 1 (A: Germany, 1918–1945)
1607/12	Paper 1 (B: Russia, 1905–1941)
1607/13	Paper 1 (C: The USA, 1919–1941)
1607/14	Paper 1 (D: China, 1945–1990)

This paper will be divided into three sections. There will be a total of 70 marks (45%).

Sections A and B will test the Core Content. In Section A there will be two source-based questions of which candidates must answer one. Each question will have two parts and will carry 10 marks. The first part will test Objective 3, and the second Objectives 1/2. In Section B there will be four structured questions, testing Objectives 1/2, of which candidates must answer one. Each question will be structured into three parts (4, 6, 10 marks).

Section C will test the chosen Depth Study. Three structured questions, testing Objectives 1/2, will be set. Candidates must answer two questions. Each question will be structured into three parts (4, 6, 10 marks).

Paper 2 (1 hour 30 minutes)

There will be a total of 60 marks (30%).

This paper will involve the detailed investigation of an historical issue taken from the Core Content. The syllabus for each year will specify the broad area from which the specific topic for the paper will be drawn. The specific topic will not be specified in advance. There will be several compulsory questions (not fewer than six and not more than nine) set on a range of source material. Candidates will be expected to use their contextual knowledge to help them comprehend, interpret, evaluate and use the sources and historical interpretations and representations they are given.

The topic for examination in 2000 will be taken from the following area of Core Content: 'Opposition to Soviet Power in Eastern Europe, 1948–68'.

4.3 Coursework

There will be a total of 60 marks (25%).

Candidates must complete two coursework assignments (30 marks each), one on each of two Depth Studies. These Depth Studies must be different from the Depth Study chosen for Paper 1.

Assignment 1 will cover the significance of an individual, development, place or event (Objectives 1 and 2).

Assignment 2 will consist of a source-based investigation of an historical issue (Objective 3).

In order that coursework arises from defined and substantial areas of content within the Depth Study, both assignments must address issues which permit students to make use of their broad contextual knowledge of the Study. In Assignment 1, tasks must focus on the idea of significance, and this can only be judged adequately in the context of developments over time. In Assignment 2, sources, interpretations and representations used should permit students to explore an historical issue taken from the Depth Study.

Coursework consultants will monitor the suitability of tasks in meeting the above requirements. Teachers must submit coursework to the consultant for approval. When submitting coursework, teachers will be required to indicate which Depth Study has been chosen for Paper 1 in order that consultants can monitor the requirement that different Depth Studies must be chosen for Paper 1 and for coursework

It should be possible for candidates to satisfy the coursework requirements by writing no more than 2000 words. However, this figure is given only as guidance, and it is recognised that many students are likely to exceed it.

A coursework guide containing further advice on setting and marking coursework, and including approved coursework tasks for teachers who do not wish to set their own, is available from OCR on request.

Appendix A provides guidance on coursework.

4.3.1 Moderation

All coursework is marked by the teacher and internally standardised by the Centre. Marks are then submitted to OCR by a specified date, after which postal moderation takes place in accordance with OCR procedures. The purpose of moderation is to ensure that the standard for the award of marks in coursework is the same for each Centre, and that each teacher has applied the standards appropriately across the range of candidates within the Centre.

The sample of work which is submitted to the Moderator for moderation must show how the marks have been awarded in relation to the marking criteria.

In order to ensure that coursework has arisen from a defined course of study, Centres will be required to submit for moderation one candidate's folder of class work on the coursework Depth Studies, as well as the prescribed number of coursework folders.

4.3.2 Minimum Coursework Requirements

If a candidate submits no work for the coursework component, then the candidate should be indicated as being absent from that component on the coursework mark sheets submitted to OCR. If a candidate completes any work for the coursework component then the work should be assessed according to the marking criteria and marking instructions, and the appropriate mark awarded, which may be 0 (zero).

4.3.3 Special Arrangements

For candidates who are unable to complete the full assessment of coursework or whose performance may be adversely affected through no fault of their own, teachers should consult OCR's procedures which can be found in the Handbook for Centres. Applications for special arrangements in such cases should be made as early as possible during the course.

4.3.4 Authentication

The teacher must be able to verify that the work submitted for assessment is the candidate's own work.

4.4 Spelling, Punctuation and Grammar

5% of the marks available within the scheme of assessment will be allocated to the assessment of spelling, punctuation and grammar.

See Appendix B for details of the assessment of spelling, punctuation and grammar.

4.5 Differentiation

In the question papers differentiation will be achieved by the use of levels of response mark schemes to assess candidates' different levels of response to common questions.

In coursework differentiation will be achieved by the setting of common tasks, and the use of levels of response mark schemes to assess candidates' responses to these tasks.

4.6 Awarding of Grades

The question papers will have a total weighting of 75% and the coursework a weighting of 25%.

A candidate's marks for the two papers and coursework, in their appropriate weighting, will be added to give a total mark for the examination. The candidate's grade will be determined by this total mark.

5 SUBJECT CONTENT

The content consists of a compulsory core, and a range of optional Depth Studies from which three must be studied (one for Paper 1 and two for coursework). Content is explained through a number of Key Questions and Focus Points. The Focus Points provide guidance on what is involved in addressing each Key Question. There are times when a Focus Point is used to set the scene for a Key Question, but without apparently bearing on the Key Question itself. This helps to indicate what is required if the Key Question itself is to be addressed adequately. Candidates will be expected to demonstrate understanding of the Key Questions and Focus Points using knowledge of relevant historical examples.

Core Content: International Relations, 1919–c.1989

1 Were the Peace Treaties of 1919–23 fair?

Focus Points:

What were the motives and aims of the Big Three at Versailles?

6 GRADE DESCRIPTIONS

Grade descriptions are provided to give a general indication of the standards of achievement likely to have been shown by candidates awarded particular grades. The descriptions must be interpreted in relation to the content specified by the syllabus; they are not designed to define that content. The grade awarded will depend in practice upon the extent to which the candidate has met the assessment objectives overall. Shortcomings in some aspects of the examination may be balanced by better performances in others.

Grade F

Candidates recall and deploy some relevant knowledge of the syllabus content.

Candidates identify and describe some reasons, results and changes in relation to the events, personalities and developments studied. They describe a few features of an event, issue or period, including characteristic ideas, beliefs and attitudes.

Candidates identify some differences between ways in which events, people or issues have been represented and interpreted. They comprehend sources of information and, taking them at their face value, begin to consider their usefulness for investigating historical issues and draw simple conclusions.

Grade C

Candidates recall, select, organise and deploy historical knowledge of the syllabus content to support, generally with accuracy and relevance, their descriptions and explanations of the events, periods and societies studied.

Candidates produce structured descriptions and explanations of the events, people, changes and issues studied. Their descriptions and explanations show understanding of relevant causes, consequences and changes. They also consider and analyse key features and characteristics of the situations, periods and societies studied including the variety of ideas, attitudes and beliefs held by people at the time.

Candidates recognise and comment on how interpretations of events, people and issues have been produced. They evaluate and use critically a range of sources of information to investigate and draw relevant conclusions.

Grade A

Candidates recall, select, organise and deploy historical knowledge of the syllabus content accurately, effectively and with consistency to substantiate arguments and reach historical judgements.

Candidates produce developed, reasoned and well substantiated analyses and explanations which consider the events, changes and issues studied in their wider historical context. They also consider the diversity and interrelationship of the features and ideas, attitudes and beliefs in the periods, societies and situations studied.

Candidates analyse how and why interpretations have been produced and consider their value in relation to their historical context. They evaluate and use critically a range of sources of information in their historical context to investigate issues and reach reasoned and substantiated conclusions.

7 FURTHER INFORMATION AND TRAINING FOR TEACHERS

In support of this syllabus, OCR will make the following materials and services available to teachers:

- specimen question papers and marking guidelines
- coursework guidance materials
- a dedicated subject-specific telephone number
- written advice on coursework proposals
- past question papers and mark schemes after each examination session
- a Report on the Examination, compiled by Principal Examiners and Moderators, after each summer examination session
- individual feedback to each Centre on the moderation of coursework.

If you would like further information about this syllabus, please contact OCR. The address is given on the back cover of this syllabus booklet.

NOTES OF GUIDANCE ON COURSEWORK

1 NATURE AND SETTING OF COURSEWORK

Candidates must complete two assignments, one on each of two Depth Studies. Assignments may consist of a single piece of extended writing or be structured into several tasks.

Coursework must provide candidates with an opportunity to address the appropriate assessment objectives as set out in the Scheme of Assessment.

When setting coursework tasks, teachers should bear in mind the marking criteria set out on pages 28–30 and should ensure that tasks enable candidates of all abilities to show positive achievement in relation to these criteria. This will involve setting common tasks, and using levels of response marking schemes.

Each piece of coursework should be of around 1000 words in length. Candidates should not, however, be penalised for exceeding this. Conversely, for certain candidates it would not be appropriate to require pieces of coursework of this length.

Coursework assignments should be set in the form of a question to be answered, an assertion or hypothesis to be tested, or a problem, issue or controversy to be investigated. In order that coursework arises from defined and substantial areas of content within the Depth Studies, both assignments must address issues which permit students to make use of their broad contextual knowledge of the Studies.

- (i) In Assignment 1 tasks must focus on the idea of significance, and this can only be judged in the context of developments over time.
- (ii) In Assignment 2 sources, interpretations and representations used should permit students to explore an historical issue taken from the Depth Study.

Candidates may use a word processor to produce their coursework.

Coursework may be submitted in a variety of media including video tape and audio tape.

2 PRE-MODERATION MONITORING OF COURSEWORK

Many Centres will want guidance and advice to help them devise appropriate coursework assignments. Centres may use assignments from the portfolio of assignments which has been provided by OCR. Alternatively, Centres may devise their own assignments. Coursework consultants have been appointed by OCR to provide advice. Consultants will be responsible for monitoring the suitability of tasks in relation to the assessment objectives and the syllabus content. Submissions to the consultant must include assignments, supporting material (e.g. sources) and marking schemes. They must also include notification of the Depth Study chosen for Paper 1 in order that the consultants can monitor the requirement that different Depth Studies are chosen for Paper 1 and for coursework.

3 DEVISING AND MARKING COURSEWORK ASSIGNMENTS

Identify the topic on which the assignment will be set. The assignment should be taken at the end of the teaching of the Depth Study in order that candidates can make use of their knowledge and understanding of the Study as a whole. The topics for the assignments must have the potential for raising issues which will allow the relevant assessment objective(s) to be covered.

Tasks must be directly targeted at the appropriate assessment objective(s).

Coursework may be in the form of an essay or project. Where these approaches are used candidates will need clear guidance about how to structure and present their work, and about which understandings and skills are being tested. Alternatively, assignments may be structured into a series of shorter tasks. Where this approach is used there must be opportunities provided for some extended writing. It is also important to set open-ended questions which can be responded to at a variety of levels.

Assignment 2 testing Objective 3 must be based around a historical issue or problem which is investigated through a range of different types of sources, interpretations and representations. Structured questions can be used but candidates must at some stage be required to reach and support their own conclusion to the issue or problem.

Levels of response marking schemes must be constructed for each task. These mark schemes should relate to the appropriate assessment objective(s) and the marking criteria set out below. Marking should be positive, rewarding achievement rather than penalising failure. The award of marks must be directly and exclusively linked to the relevant assessment objective(s). No other objectives may be assessed. It is the quality of the candidate's work and not its quantity or presentation which is assessed.

After candidates have completed the assignment the mark scheme should be refined in the light of candidates' responses.

Where two or more teachers in a Centre are involved in the marking of coursework, internal standardisation of marks must take place prior to the submission of mark sheets to OCR.

All assessed work should be annotated to indicate where, in the work, evidence for the marks awarded may be found. Annotations may be made on a cover sheet and/or at the appropriate points in the margins of the work.

4 TEACHER SUPERVISION OF COURSEWORK

OCR does not expect candidates to undertake coursework without guidance and continuing supervision from teachers. The degree of teacher guidance in candidates' work will vary according to the kinds of work being undertaken. It should be remembered, however, that candidates are required to reach their own judgements and conclusions.

When supervising coursework, teachers are expected to:

- offer candidates advice about how best to approach coursework;
- exercise continuing supervision of work in order to monitor progress and to prevent plagiarism;
- ensure that the work is completed in accordance with the syllabus requirements and can be assessed in accordance with the specified marking criteria and procedures.

5 PRODUCTION AND PRESENTATION OF COURSEWORK

Candidates must observe certain procedures in the production of coursework:

- any copied material must be suitably acknowledged.
- quotations must be clearly marked and a reference provided wherever possible.
- coursework submitted for moderation must be marked with
 - the Centre number
 - the Centre name
 - the candidate number
 - the candidate name
 - the syllabus code and title
 - the assignment title.

- all coursework submitted for moderation must be kept in a flat card file (not a ring binder).

6 THE ALLOCATION OF MARKS FOR COURSEWORK

Assignment 1 (Objectives 1 and 2)	30 marks
Assignment 2 (Objective 3)	30 marks
Spelling, punctuation and grammar	3 marks
Total for coursework	63 marks

The marking criteria are set out below. The marking criteria for spelling, punctuation and grammar are set out in Appendix B.

7 MARKING CRITERIA FOR COURSEWORK

Marks should be awarded according to the following criteria for each assessment objective. It should be noted that these descriptors are general and refer to a candidate's overall performance in each assessment objective, and therefore should not be used to mark individual tasks. A levels of response marking scheme should be constructed for each task set. The total mark achieved for a particular assessment objective will place the candidate in one of the levels below. The candidate's work should demonstrate the qualities listed in that level. If it does not, the marks will need to be adjusted.

Band marks are given out of a maximum of 10, but can be multiplied to larger totals as required.

Assessment Objectives 1 and 2

Band 1, mark range 1–3

Candidates can select and use some relevant information to construct narratives, descriptions and explanations which are straightforward and accurate but are likely to be relatively brief or limited in scope.

Candidates can describe some of the main events, people and changes, and give a few reasons for, and results of, the main events and changes.

Candidates can describe a few features of an event, issue or period, including, at a basic level, characteristic ideas, beliefs and attitudes.

Band 2, mark range 4–7

Candidates can select, organise and deploy a wider range of relevant information to produce structured narratives, descriptions and explanations which are accurate and reasonably thorough but are nonetheless limited to the more obvious aspects of the matter under consideration.

Candidates can produce structured descriptions and explanations of events, people, changes and issues, and analyse causes and consequences.

Candidates can describe, analyse and explain key features and characteristics of situations, periods, and societies including the variety of ideas, attitudes, and beliefs held by people at the time.

Band 3, mark range 8–10

Candidates can select, organise and deploy an extensive range of relevant information to produce consistently well structured narratives, descriptions and explanations which are thorough and accurate and show appreciation of the wider context of the information.

Candidates can analyse relationships between a wide range of events, people, ideas and changes. Their explanations and analyses of causes and consequences of events and changes are well substantiated and set in their wider historical context.

Candidates can give reasons for the diversity of the features and ideas, attitudes and beliefs in the periods, societies and situations studied, and can explain the interrelationship between them.

Assessment Objective 3

Band 1, mark range 1–3

Using their knowledge and understanding candidates can identify some differences between ways in which events, people or issues have been represented and interpreted.

Using their knowledge and understanding candidates can comprehend sources of information but take them at face value. They can identify those that are useful for particular tasks and can draw simple conclusions.

Band 2, mark range 4–7

Using their knowledge and understanding candidates understand that some events, people or issues have been interpreted differently, can recognise these differences and explain how they have been produced.

Using their knowledge and understanding candidates evaluate and use critically a range of sources of information to investigate issues and draw relevant conclusions.

Band 3, mark range 8–10

Using their knowledge and understanding candidates can analyse how and why differing interpretations of events, people or issues have been produced, and can evaluate these interpretations and make balanced judgements about their value in relation to the historical context.

Using their knowledge and understanding candidates can evaluate and use critically a range of sources of information in their historical context to investigate issues and reach reasoned and substantiated conclusions.

THE ASSESSMENT OF SPELLING, PUNCTUATION AND GRAMMAR

- 1 The assessment of spelling, punctuation and grammar is required in the following components of this syllabus:

Syllabus Code	Component Code	Title
1607	11–14 2 3	Paper 1 Paper 2 Coursework

- 2 The marks for each component will be awarded on the basis of the performance in spelling, punctuation and grammar on the component overall, in accordance with the performance criteria given in paragraph 4 below.
- 3 For the internally assessed component (1607/3), teachers should first assess each candidate's work against the subject specific criteria given in the syllabus on pages 28–30 and award a total mark.

The criteria for spelling, punctuation and grammar should then be applied, and marks added to the total according to the range given below. The coursework forms to be issued by OCR will accommodate the marks awarded for spelling, punctuation and grammar.

4 Application of the Criteria

Allocation of Marks Internally Assessed Component

Below threshold performance 0

Threshold performance

Candidates spell, punctuate and use the rules of grammar with reasonable accuracy; they use a limited range of specialist terms appropriately. 1

Intermediate performance

Candidates spell, punctuate and use the rules of grammar with considerable accuracy; they use a good range of specialist terms with facility. 2

High Performance

Candidates spell, punctuate and use the rules of grammar with almost faultless accuracy, deploying a range of grammatical constructions; they use a wide range of specialist terms with precision.

Heritage

This syllabus meets the History Subject Criteria for selection of content by requiring the study of:

key issues, events, personalities and developments identified through key questions and focus points in both the core and depth studies, for example the core is an outline study of international relations between 1919 and 1989, and charts major developments such as the breakdown in international order in the 1930s, and the Cold War after the Second World War. Each of the key questions defines a key issue, such as 'To what extent was the League of Nations a success?' Major events such as the signing of the peace treaties in 1919–20, the invasion of Manchuria in 1931, and the Cuban Missile Crisis are included, as are the roles of personalities such as Lloyd George, Hitler and Gorbachev.

key features and characteristics of the periods, societies, situations specified, and, where appropriate, the social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity of the societies studied and the experiences of men and women in these societies in the depth studies, for example in the Germany Depth Study, key features and characteristics such as political extremism and militarism, and the impact of economic collapse on political life; social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity in contrasting society and culture in the Weimar and Nazi periods, and in the Nazi treatment of ethnic and religious minorities; the experiences of men and women throughout the period, but in particular experiences of women in Nazi Germany.

history in two different scales: international through the study of international relations, and national by offering the opportunity to study in depth a significant period from the history of more than one country, for example Russia, 1905–41 and the USA, 1919–41.

history in two different ways: an outline study of developments in international relations from 1919–1989, and studies in depth over a shorter period of societies 'in the round', for example the USA, 1919–1941. The core content will therefore be concerned with a single theme (international relations) over a longer period of time than that covered by the Depth Studies. The Depth Studies will be more concerned with the various aspects of political, social, economic and cultural developments in a single society.

history from a variety of perspectives – political, social, economic and cultural – in particular through the Depth Studies: for instance, in the USA, 1919–41, the political consequences of the crash, and the differing responses of Republicans and Democrats to the crash; the social developments of the 'Roaring Twenties' including changes in the roles of women; the economic causes and consequences of the Wall Street Crash; and cultural developments such as the impact of motion pictures.

history through a range of sources of information appropriate to the period, as encouraged in coursework, and in preparation for the sources exercise in Paper 2.
